Oral storytelling is a tradition as old as we are...

Stories tell of betrayal, joy, lust, love, greed, kindness, death, joy, sorrow, redemption and revenge. Stories serve to teach, to warn, to touch our darkest souls, our breathless hopes, our compassion, our best selves and our moral compass.

Stories can bring us to tears or to laughter. Whether we are young or old, stories take us out of ourselves into another world, where anything is possible, and anything might happen!

Our daytime sessions will engage and entertain children, and encourage them to question, to think, but most of all to laugh and be creative.

In the evenings the stories turn more adult, our tellers will fascinate and intrigue, and may be a little unsettling.

If you haven't yet been immersed in the magic of oral stories – this is your chance. If you have, you'll definitely want to be with us!
